

WHen one has the pleasure of finding a nice movie or program on television, it is too often interrupted by ads that are lewd or suggestive, or both. I am sick of seeing half naked people running through the ads in my living room. The television industry needs to be chastised for its extreme lack of good taste. How sad it takes a government agency to make them adhere to decent standards. Clear Channel Communications is one of the major offenders. Please do something about it. Thank you.
